Race 1 – Class 5 1000m

The race: Good speed, inclined to think faster than average with the 2 most likely leaders on either side of the draw, Multimore and Diamond Soars, and with enough speed in between them to make them run along. Quite a few of the horses mapped here as the second wave are capable of going average pace for the early sections here and that will put some pressure on anything that wants to get around them. Craig's Master a really interesting runner here on several levels, as he has had a change of yard to Hall and been beginning well in his 4 trials for the yard. He has shown speed at different times in the past & has also been an unreliable beginner but with Blkrs going on here f/up, expect that he is here to be positive? Not sure where to put King Invincible – Purton made some use of him I/s from a wide gate, he draws better here to be held up and running on. Leung replaces Purton but he also has ridden the horse handy in the past?

The fav: Modest Gentleman is a recent winner c/d this grade and ran well I/s when slow to jump, rider reported that mud on his goggles hampered his vision in the home straight when 2d I/s. He has the draw and right style for this race but do expect good support for King Invincible from a better draw. Interesting the support for Multimore returning from throat surgery.

Recommendations: KING INVINCIBLE a decent price tonight from better gate, with Purton off and Leung on. 2.5 units. ISLAND SURPRISE has a bad map but ran ok 1000m f/up from 3 month break. Will get back and be running on again at big odds. 1.5 units. The stable change for CRAIG'S MASTER catches the eye, has been well-prepped for this and has a draw. He's a likely improver and think the 34.0 at bookies should be taken. 1 unit.

11	11.8	DRAGON PRIDE	24	2	NOT A FEW	>>>>>>>
12	3.9	CHEONG FAT	7.3	1	FRUITY WARRIOR	>>>>>>

The race: Soft tempo. Could not say Cordyceps One is especially quick but he has the 10-pound claimer tonight and will certainly have every intention of crossing to find the lead, if he is allowed to do that. Not A Few likely shows more speed from the good gate tonight, Excel Wongchoy led I/s when dropped down to this grade and Brave Witness likely to be positive. They are all inside Cordyceps One in the draw so he can't afford to make any mistakes out of the gates though, in fairness, he has been beginning well lately. Absolute Sunshine is a query – has probably gone better running on but has been sent forward a few times when there didn't look a lot of speed so he might be employed like that here?

The fav: Not a perfect map for Volcanic Spark in an open race but he did have some excuses I/s Sha Tin when the pace stopped and started a couple of times, he got pulling but stuck on to the line ok. He looks short enough already Cordyceps One but won't be surprised if he firms as he's the one that looks best suited by the race set up with the 10-pound claimer on.

Recommendations: Staying out of this. Can only find good value arguments for Cheong Fat and Dragon Pride and they are likely to be two of the last in running with no tempo to help. NO BET.

11	11.6	EAGLE RUN	4.1	2	HANG'S CHOICE	>>>>>>
12		HANG'S CHOICE	25 ^	1	DRAGON KINGDOM	>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>

The race: Average tempo at best, more likely slow. Dragon Kingdom won't know himself stepping up to 1650m for the first time. Has had a few physical issues in the last year but retains quite a bit of his old speed & he can lead these if he wants to. Big Two will look to trail but Eagle Run (YL Chung) and Dragon Delight (E C W Wong) do offer alternative speed if Dragon Kingdom prefers to take a sit. They also offer some potential for pressure on the leader – especially Eagle Run, who was ridden too conservatively I/s – but there's nothing set in stone?

The fav: Big Two did get his chance last time and was run down by Northern Beast but the race rated well, he sets up well for this again and expect he keeps favouritism.

Recommendations: Nothing wrong with the form of these favourites but no stars amongst them so happy to take big odds a few that might map better. DRAGON KINGDOM looks the leader in first attempt 1650m, better for one run back from abreak though must be said he has any number of problems in recent times. 1.5 units. PRESTIGE MOOCHI ran ok 1200m HV 3 starts ago then Blkrs went on last 2 dirt runs and has gone awful. Blkrs off here, up sharply In distance might suit. 1 unit. We tried V LOVE YOU on the dirt I/s and although he had to do some work to get across to lead from gate 9, he was disappointing. That said, it was his first attempt on the surface and his best run in C4 this season came this c/d. 1 unit.

Race 4 - Class 4 1200m

The race: Good speed at least, leaning to faster. Mega Bonus ridden a little cute I/s C3 but now back to C4 and expect Hamelin will return to the usual aggressive tactics of leading at a good speed but he does have a rival here in Kowloon East Star, an habitual leader over 1000m & certainly fast enough to go with him. A couple of the new horses have shown some speed in their trials overseas & HK – Flying Wrote, Embraces and The Azure – but they will find this a different experience under race conditions with a couple of aggressive frontrunners. Double Bingo interesting on the map – he did show a little speed in his trials but Ferraris simply steadied him early in his debut in a solidly-run event c/d and he ran on strongly late to just miss. It's conceivable he could be closer but thinking they might stick with a tactic that worked well and looks suitable again?

The fav: Plenty may want to oppose Double Bingo at a short price on the basis of him being 77-1 at debut when he was a good running on 2d but this does set up for a run-on horse too. A couple of the unraced or lightly-raced horses have shown some ability at trials but none has looked anything special.

Recommendations: Happy to play DOUBLE BINGO as he did look to have some ability in his trials before surprised most with his debut run. 4.5 units. Interested In HOSS as an improver here. Notable his best recent run was two starts ago running on in same race as this favourite. His Blkrs were then taken off before last week's run when he was poor. The Blkrs go straight back on here on a 7-day back-up, where Ng does get good results. 1.5 units.

11	6.1	TATTENHAM	7.0	2	CLEAR COURAGE	>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>
12		MAXIMIZE HEART	32 ^	1	LYRICAL MOTION	>>>>>>>>

The race: Average tempo, potential for faster. Diamond Flare didn't get much peace in front last week at a slightly faster than average tempo before holding on for 2d. Anticipate the same tactics here & he's probably just too sharp for unraced Clear Courage & Golden Link, who led I/s but it has not been his pattern. Whether he gets a more peaceful trip in front might depend on Beauty Destiny, who is very quick but has been very keen as well in his 8-start career & weakened out of a lot of races after leading as fav. In more recent starts at 1000m, he has been restrained behind the lead – he has still been pretty keen – so moving him up to 1200m again is an interesting choice of assignment. He could lead but he would have to go quick to get around Diamond Flare and might be better suited having something quick in front of him to chase - inclined to think Purton will ride him like that rather than get into a duel?

The fav: No surprise to see Lyrical Motion favourite yet again. Racing consistently and did have some hard luck stories his last 2 starts but mainly down to his own untidy starts. The 1 gate and the 10-pound claim are doing most of the heavy lifting here. Where else could the market go? Diamond Flare was good last week when he was kept busy In a fastish lead and stuck on. Do think the fact that Purton wants to stick with Beauty Destiny here at 1200m should bring some support.

Recommendations: BEAUTY DESTINY gets a leader to follow here and some headgear changes that might help him settle. Interesting that Purton stays on. For a horse often very short in his races, he is a good price tonight. 5.5 units. TATTENHAM has a nasty draw but going well. 2 units.

Race 6 – Class 4 1650m

The race: Average tempo at best, likely slower but there are queries. Not a lot of speed at all at first glance but we might have a couple of surprise on-speed runners, in addition to the more obvious Gallant Crown and Packing Wisher. Expect to see Kyeema, in particular, prominent here at his first attempt this distance. He had an on speed pattern before coming to HK, has found the 1200m races a bit sharp but began well and was quite prominent I/s 1400m when caught wide from gate 14. He might not intend to lead but do think he'll be forward. The other possible surprise packet is Apolar Fighter stepping up sharply in distance & dropping in class at the same time as getting the 10-pound claimer aboard. In Australia, he led all the way in easy 1400m maiden win, hasn't done a lot in three 1200m runs HK in C3 but perhaps they'll look to do something different here?

The fav: Kasa Papa certainly an interesting proposition after a stable change to Cruz as he has shown plenty of ability without winning – he's just not a horse whose style lends itself to having much luck in races and gate 8 isn't ideal. Think the market will rally to Joyful prosperity and make him favourite by race time. He is going well, running on and making good ground with tempo and/or draw against him but now gets gate 1 and should be poised behind the leaders.

Recommendations: JOYFUL PROSPERITY gets his chance here. Has had tempos again lately after getting back but gate 1 might help him to be closer here. 2 units. Think he will start favourite so the 4.8 at bookies appeals. 2 units. Think JUMBO LEGEND will get out from current odds. Gets a lot way back & needs luck but runs on whether pace is fast or slow. 2 units.

The race: Average tempo at least but inclined towards a faster than average pace. Happy United capable of leading here, up to 1200m, but even if he and Copartner Prince were both to take a sit, Ka Ying Cheer, Celestial Colours and possibly Magic Phoenix will be pushing forward early looking to cross. If the horses hold their positions inside, then we have a contest for the front.

The fav: Think the market will tighten up around Copartner Prance and Ka Ying Cheer, both coming out of solid C4 form, both getting a big weight drop as a result.

Recommendations: Plenty of respect for Copartner Prance who did not have it all his way and won anyway I/s C4 but the figures of KA YING CHEER are slightly higher and he is getting weight, though not mapping as well as the favourite. KA YING CHEER 4.5 units. Interesting runner HAPPY UNITED who is a big price despite running to his best I/s 1000m. There is a slight query whether he's as good at 1200m but he has won at the distance. He is 20.0 at bookies and happy to take that. 2.5 units.

Race 8 - Class 3 1650m

The race: Average tempo at best. The trick to this is the way that Hewitson rides Yellowfin – he will want to find the front without doing too much in the early stages - and Red Majesty probably will let him dictate rather than challenge him - but Yellowfin will likely pick up the pace quite a long way from home. So Simply Maverick, Ivy League and particularly Winning Dragon have been ridden handy at times but it looks a bit awkward here for any of them if they want to put any early pressure on the leaders and Avdulla does seem to have decided on a more conservative approach with Winning Dragon anyway.

The fav: It almost seems like a rule that Simply Maverick has to be favourite in his races & perhaps he will be again though his ratings have never really matched up with the opinion of him that seems to be held in the market. The race sets up well for Yellow so he will have his supporters too.

Recommendations: There is 6.5 YELLOWFIN with bookies – expect market in general will find him but that price is acceptable. 1 unit. Always happy to take big prices RED MAJESTY in these races – perception is that the 7yo is overmatched in this grade so getting a good price again in a race that will be run to suit. 2.5 units and the 16.0 at bookies is probably top odds.

11		MY FLYING ANGEL	8.3 ^	1	FORTUNE WHISKEY	>>>>>>

The race: Average tempo, potential for faster. Probably only two leaders here, Colourful Emperor (YL Chung) and California Touch (Chadwick) so the chemistry between them will be critical. California Touch was a stamina query at 1200m before latest C4 win when his speed was used to find the lead at right on average tempo and he lasted to win. Colourful Emperor, though, has been more aggressive than that and pressing forward in fast tempos for this rider so there is the prospect of a duel. If Chadwick is awake to that, perhaps he could take a sit but it seems more likely they'll stick with a winning tactic? Kaholo Angel could be anywhere – he is normally ridden on the speed, if he begins ok, but came out just neutral I/s widish draw this c/d, E llis Wong couldn't really get it going and sat out the back wide. After the horse pulled off a big win ridden like that, perhaps he'll think that's the right approach but it looks very sticky whatever happens.

The fav: Colourful Emperor has been favourite his last 4 starts, winning 2 and placed 2 so perhaps he will keep favouritism here with a good map but has yet to post figures that justify how short he is. Expect California Touch to be well bet.

Recommendations: CALIFORNIA TOUCH was seen as a stamina doubt at 1200m before I/s win but he will run well here if repeats that with a much lighter handicap tonight. 4.5 units. LIGHTNING BOLT wide I/s but previous run was a good hidden effort and worth a play here even with a slightly sticky gate. 2.5 units. Think the 13.0 HAPPY TRIO with bookies looks overs. 1 unit.
